news, like one parent stealing the children and fleeing to another country or even murdering the children to spite the other parent. He has seen terrible things that could be avoided if couples were to accept counselling and to forgive each other to stay in the marriage or repair the relationship so children can have a stable home with both parents. Alastair also participated in the Prime Minister's recent 20/20 Conference. He enjoyed it and heard many constructive ideas to improve our nation. He hopes at least some of them make it to fruition. He found Kevin Rudd very approachable to all delegates, wandering in and out of sessions freely with no gangs of political and security minders.

President Ian thanked Alastair for his many contributions and improvements to Australia's legal system over his career. He presented him with a Rotary donation to his favourite charity.
